Ionterey, the Old Capital, a Scene of Great Excitement. Monterey, September 22d.-Intelligence was brought to town yesterday that one of lost mine, known by the early settlers as the "Maria Roman mine." It has often been told how this Indian woman used to go away, and in the coerse of a few days would return with large amounts of silver ore, which she would assay herself at the mine. Where the mine was has always been a mystery, and even to-day some of the old Indians around Monterey tell about the lost mine which old Maria Roman had. During many years past some of our old citizens have occasionally organized parties and hunted in vain for the hidden treasure. That the mine was not far off was evident from the statement made by the Indians that old Maria would leave the mission and return next day with the ore.

The mine, if accounts are correct, is lo-cated near the head of the Carmel river, about fifteen miles from Monterey, and was found by Mr. Foreman while deer-hunting. He also found, according to the story of the party who brought the news, an old furnace and other instruments which Maria used to crush the ore. The news has created great excitement here, and several parties are making preparations to go to the mine. If the story is correct, which no one doubts, it will be a great thing for Monterey. The objections raised to it are ural right and refusing to deny it to each two in number, and neither, we think, are of sufficient force to overthrow the proposition. First, that the competition between valley and foothill and mountain counties would generate ill feeling; second, that it is impracticable to handle all the counties have, so long as it labors at cross purposes of one class in an exhibit, as local jeal with itself. The benefits of this new orousies would develop, and, as a result, there would be inharmony. Now, as to the first, by the people of the country than by the we pulled up stakes and passed to the it is to be said that it is an unwarranted fear, and that there is nothing to justify ill feeling between sections in the proposition to group exhibits, more than in the present successful scheme of competition between counties. Secondly, there is very is not entitled to much sympathy. little likelihood that the growers of apples the manufacturers of textile fabrics, the cultivators of flowers, the raisers of hops, would quarrel if their exhibits were grouped, any more than the exhibitors of live stock do now, who are and for years have been grouped at the Park; nor than the agricultural implement men, who occupy the same annex without any mani- and some months of time and energy have festation of jealousy. The New Orleans, in the great exposition held in Brazil, in the present Paris Exposition, the orderly arrangement of kinds together proved on trial uniformly to equalize the exhibitors, to lessen their individual expenses, and to stimulate better exhibitions. It happens that our foothill and mountain counties are of mixed character as to products; they show miner-

When these two exhibit as counties. therefore, there is inequality of competition, and really not that fair test that there should be. Thus we find in the premium lists that grasses and woods are grouped for a single premium. A hill county unquestionably excels in woods, and a valley county is superior in grasses, yet the award for both objects must be made to one county. So, too, a mountain county produces fruits and minerals, a valley county shows fruits without minerals. Yet between those two there must be an award made. But if all the articles of growth and manufacture were grouped by sections, in grand division, but retaining the county credit in labeling, it would make the competition as it should be, between kinds. Moreover the county character would be preserved as now, but the competition would be between those producing minerals for the mineral awards alone, between those producing fruit for the fruit awards alone, able for the killing of Jackson by Ahearn. stone, gray with age, is a name ducing from the graveyard. SELECTION OF JURORS. The Class of Men Obtained in the Cronin Case.

(From the St. Louis Globe-Democrat 1

It is desirable, of course, that juries shall in all cases be composed of disinterested and unprejudiced men. This is particularly true as to trial for murder; and the Courts are bound to see that a prisoner is not wronged on the one hand nor society on the other by improper selections. But is the prevailing practice such as to secure the best results? The Cronin case mass of them were from the rural districts. at Chicago presents the question in an interesting light, and makes it a timely one for discussion. It is very evident that the accused parties in this instance are determined to have a jury which shall know as little as possible, and to a certain extent the law favors their desire. In the nature of things, it is practically impossible to obtain jurors who have not read and talked of a case about which so much has been published. If men of that kind exist, they must be marvels of ignorance; and yet the task of selection proceeds I have often heard of oysters growing to be found, and that when found they will be most competent for this grave and difficult service. In the ordinary affairs of life intelligent familiarity with a subject is rated as the best proof of fitness to render a just and proper judgment upon it; but when a monstrous crime is to be judicially investigated, this rule is singularly reversed, and stupidity becomes the highest qualification

> There is not a man of average intelligence within the jurisdiction of the Chicago Court, it is safe to say, who has failed to absorb the general history of the Cronin case. But this does not signify that all such citizens have formed opinions or prejudices which would prevent them from dealing honestly and fairly in the capacity of jurors. Very many of them, perhaps, entertain certain theories as to the motives of the crime, and possibly as to the guilt or innocence of those who are about to be tried. These theories are not fixed beliefs, however, and do not imply a disposition to render a verdict contrary to ceived impressions. They only ask that the facts shall be given to them in a distinct and reliable form; and surely an intelligent man is more trustworthy than an gnorant one where the value of testimony s to be determined. The Courts are inthem too much in the matter. They are still too patient with processes of selection which give weak juries where strong ones that the course of justice is obstructed and often defeated, to the reproach of the law and the detriment of society. It is not true that the most indifferent or commonplace person makes the most satisfactory uror. That is an exploded superstition and the sooner we get rid of it altogether the better for all the interests involved in

STAGE ROBBER CAPTURED.

Deputy Constable Fick Stumbles Ove the Forest Hill Stage Stopper and Arrests Him

On the 2d of this month the Forest Hill stage, which runs from Auburn, Placer county, to Forest Hill, was "held up" by a lone highwayman about five miles from Five passengers were aboard, but the disciple of Claude Duval did not molest them, being satisfied with the contents of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s treasure-box, which contained considerable money. After emptying the box the robber placed in it a note addressed to J. B. Hume, the express company's Vidocq, and threw it back upon the stage, at the same time ordering the driver to "git" as fast as he could. The note contained the highwayman's sarcastic compliments to Hume, and defying the latter's efforts to capture the perpetrator of the robbery. No signature was added, but the whole was an imitation of Black Bart's

The matter was of course reported to the Sheriff of Placer county and the Consta-bles, as well as to Wells, Fargo & Co.'s office at San Francisco.

Detective Hume investigated, but could find no clue regarding the highwayman, either as to his identity or his whereabouts. "Black Bart at his old tricks again," was what some of the newspapers suggested, but many of the residents of Auburn and vicinity attributed the robbery to the no-torious Sharp, whose depredations had been frequently heard of in that section

The matter had almost been lost sight of when the suspicious actions of a man, known as Henry Williamson, attracted the attention of the authorities at Auburn. His appearance tallied exactly with the discription given by the passengers of the robber, and his arrest was decided upon. But Williamson got wind of their intention in some manner, and suddenly disappeared, nobody knew where. All efforts to trail him proved of no avail for some

Williamson, it now develops, came to this city, and took in the fair. So did some Placer county people. He was recognized, and word was sent to Auburn to that etfect. Deputy Constable H. L. Fick of that place at once repaired to Sacramento, and began his search The deputy could find no trace of his man at all and was about to give up hope Yesterday afternoon, however, Fick was strolling down J street deploring his bad luck, and was just about to cross Eighth street when who should he bump into but Williamson. It is needless to say that the deputy "pounced" upon his man and es-corted him to the City Prison for safe-keep-He was booked en route to Auburn. Fick naturally feels very jubilant over his capture, as there are rewards offered by the State and the express company amounting to $1.600. He says there is no doubt that Williamson is the man who robbed he can be successfully prosecuted.

The prisoner stoutly maintained that he was innocent, and assured the officer that it was a case of mistaken identity. He said he had no objection to going back to Auburn with the Constable or to standing burn with the constant trial, as he says his acquittal is certain. Williamson is a medium-sized man, about thirty years old. He was dressed in a plain tion whatever for the sensational story.

"I have known this young man for a long time," said he, "and I know that he long time," said he, "and I know that he long time," said he, "and I know that he long time," said he, "and I know that he long time," said he, "and I know that he long time," Follows

The country young man wanted to show off before his girl, so he ran to the front door of the car, and, grasping the door-casing with one hand and the top of the dash-board with the other, he braced himself in the doorwer and self in the doorway and commenced to pull. Just then the car began to move, and the young man's face became lit up with a smile of satisfaction at what he be-lieved to be the happy result of his exertions. He tugged and tugged, however, until the veins on his forehead and in his neck swelled as if they would burst, and while for the same date last year it was 88' became redder than the necktie that adorned his shirt-front.

the navigation of the rivers of the State. The work will necessarily take a long time. as the engineers engaged must find time to pursue their investigations without inter-tering with their regular duties. The next point to be investigated is the condition of the Sacramento river and its tributaries. The last authentic report was made about ten years since, and this week several par-ties will be sent out with instructions to make a careful survey of these streams and determine what changes have taken place since the last report. The reports from these surveying parties will show the depth of water, amount of filling and sediment, debris held in suspension, etc., and will enable the United States Engineering Corps to form some idea of the present condition of these waterways. This work will probably be finished in a few weeks, but the #### final report of the Commission to Congress will not be ready for some time to come. CANTOR'S CHECK.

It was Bogus, and He Must Go to 'Frisco for Trial. A man named John Cantor was arrested on K street by police officers Rider and Simmons yesterday and locked up in the City Prison on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. It was about one year ago when he presented his check on the California Bank to J. A. Crawford, the proprietor of a billiard hall on Eddy street in San Francisco, in payment of a small debt which he had contracted. The check called for several hundred dollars, but as Cantor had gained the reputation of being a "blood," and was supposed to be in affluent circumstances, Crawford did not hesitate to cash the check and turn the money over to Cantor, only withholding what was due him. The next day Crawford presented the check at the California Bank, but the Cashier refused to cash it for the very good reason that no such man as Cantor had any money on deposit there. Crawford realized that he had been swindled, and reported the matter to the police. Warrants were at once issued for Cantor's arrest, but that worthy had departed for parts unknown, and nothing could be

Last week Crawford visited this city and ook in the races. While sauntering about the park, in the vicinity of the pool-boxes, he suddenly espied his old friend Cantor in the crowd, in the company of a party of learned as to his whereabouts.

Crawford left the park without being seen by Cantor, and hastened to the policestation and informed the officers of the matter. It was necessary to telegraph to San Francisco for the warrants for Cantor, so Crawford had to keep himself "shady" until they arrived. When they did arrive a search was made for Cantor, but he could not be found. It was thought that he had left town, and the search was about to be given up. He had not left town, though. He was seen in the vicinity of the Western Hotel, and officers Rider and Simmons grabbed him

Word was immediately sent to Chief Crowley, of San Francisco, and that official has detailed an officer to come up and take charge of the elusive Cantor.

A Brilliant Game at Stockton Won by the "Hayseeds."

STOCKTON, September 22d .- Runs were an exceedingly scarce article in the game between the Stocktons and San Franciscos to-day. After eight innings but one run had been scored, and the aforesaid run had been stolen by Tom Powers. In the eighth inning Tom was given first on balls. He caused quite a sensation here. Fire Last Night. Smoke issuing from the transom and through the cracks of the door of Miss Golden's millinery establishment on J street, near Sixth, attracted pedestrians on that street late last night, and word was sent to the hook-and-ladder company. Upon the arrival of the firemen an entrance was nade into the store, and it was discovered that a pile of paper and rubbish in the cen ter of the store was ablaze, and burning rapidly. The fire was extinguished before it got under headway, although considerable damage was done to the stock and fixtures of the place. It is not known how the fire started, as the place was locked up all day. No slarm of fire was turned in.

It is now known that a pimply skin is not the result of blood disease, but is caused by impaired digestion, for which they now give vegetable correctives instead of minerals. Two short testimonials are given to contrast the action of the potash sarsa-

Its only effect was to cause pimples to appear on her face. Upon taking Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla the first effect was the disappearance of the pimples and she was subsequently relieved of the indigestion and dyspepsia Robert Stewart also writes from Petaluma, Cal., that be-

Remarkable Ceremonies to Unite Two Young Israelites. [From the Detroit Sunday News.]

Two fiddlers, perched on a deal table in the corner of a dimly lighted little room, on East Woodbridge street, near Adair. made music last night for as gay a crowd as one often sees. In the center of the room, the floor of which sagged and swayed beneath the weight of the two sets of dancers, a very pretty little Jewish maiden, attired in the whitest of satin dresses and a long flowing vail covered with orange leaves, was whirled about by a young man, also of Hebrew extraction, wearing a jaunty derb hat. It was an Israelite wedding, and the contracting parties were Max Karlowitz and Miss Lena Gunnelfinger. Max is a tailor and Lena is a shirt-maker.

The marriage ceremony was performed by a rabbi who came from Kalamazoo. When the rabbi entered the room all present arose, each man religiously keeping his hat on his head. A small table was put in the middle of the room and on it were placed two lighted tapers and two glasses of wine. A gold ring also lay upon a plate. When all was ready the young couple went to the table, Max going with his male friends, and Miss Lena leading upon the arm of one of her friends of her own sex. After reading aloud an invocatian the rabbi asked the routine of ques-tions and then commanded the bride and groom to partake of the wine. Miss Lena delicately sipped from the glass, which was immediately afterward passed to Max. He in turn passed his glass to his wife. During the entire cerenony Max kept his hat perched on the back of his head. At the conclusion of the ceremony his new friends caught him in their arms and hugged and kissed him as though he were a maiden of sixteen summers. The new wife, too, was embraced by everybody within reach, and before this congratulatory exercise was over alpresent had done considerable hugging. Then followed the dancing.

agree-The Church Burned. RED LAKE FALLS (Minn.), September 22d.—St. Joseph's Catholic Church was discovered on fire last night at midnight, and be fore the flames were gotten under control the church and contents were totally destroyed. This fire is the sequel to the in-tensely bitter fight which has been raging between the French and German Catholics of Polk county for the past six months. The fire was incendiary, as the men who were the first to the scene claim they saw a three-gallon can of oil underneath the

A Friendly Article in a New York Paper on the Product of Our Orchards, NEW YORK, September 22d .- The Sun to-day printed a column article concerning the sales of California fruit in the East. A friendly tone is manifested. It says that California fruit brings twice and thrice more than domestic fruit.

But one great thing in favor of California fruit is the way in which it is packed. If the "vellows" cannot be cured the Delaware peach orchards are to be moved, and California fruit will take the place of Del-

An Open Letter.

Drs. Darrin & Quinlan-Gentlemen: I now take the pleasure of writing you that after a full course of your electro-magnetic treatment i am entirely cured of a pain in my chest, which has troubled me for over eight years. Having been under treatment by doctors of Liverpool, Glasgow, Calcutta and San Francisco, none of them did me any good until I came under your treatment, which I am sure has permanently cured me, for which, gentlemen, I beg to remain yours gratefully,
